

THE BROOKLYN DAILY EAGLE, NEW YORK, SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 8, 1908.

Fishing from Dreamland Pier

By Louis Rhead

WITH the advent of cold weather it must be imagined that the salt water angler packed up his tackle and laid it by for the winter. The fisherman, however, is not so easily satisfied. When many other anglers have retired to their homes, the salt water angler is still out there, fishing from the pier. The weather is not so good, but the fish are still there, and the angler is still there, fishing from the pier.

It seems a matter to enter the pier in winter, or even the slightest breeze, but the man who takes your money and hands out the tackle is not so easily deterred. He will give you a few words of advice, and you will be off to the pier. The weather is not so good, but the fish are still there, and the angler is still there, fishing from the pier.

The number of anglers on the pier is not so large as in the summer, but it is still there. The weather is not so good, but the fish are still there, and the angler is still there, fishing from the pier.

While the weather is not so good, the fish are still there, and the angler is still there, fishing from the pier. The weather is not so good, but the fish are still there, and the angler is still there, fishing from the pier.

The weather is not so good, but the fish are still there, and the angler is still there, fishing from the pier. The weather is not so good, but the fish are still there, and the angler is still there, fishing from the pier.

The weather is not so good, but the fish are still there, and the angler is still there, fishing from the pier. The weather is not so good, but the fish are still there, and the angler is still there, fishing from the pier.

The weather is not so good, but the fish are still there, and the angler is still there, fishing from the pier. The weather is not so good, but the fish are still there, and the angler is still there, fishing from the pier.

The weather is not so good, but the fish are still there, and the angler is still there, fishing from the pier. The weather is not so good, but the fish are still there, and the angler is still there, fishing from the pier.

The weather is not so good, but the fish are still there, and the angler is still there, fishing from the pier. The weather is not so good, but the fish are still there, and the angler is still there, fishing from the pier.

TAILOR SHOP FILLED WITH RARE PAINTINGS

THE sign "A. J. Sommer" has been a little shop in the old-fashioned street, just north of the Fulton, for many years. It has been a little shop in the old-fashioned street, just north of the Fulton, for many years. It has been a little shop in the old-fashioned street, just north of the Fulton, for many years.

The sign "A. J. Sommer" has been a little shop in the old-fashioned street, just north of the Fulton, for many years. It has been a little shop in the old-fashioned street, just north of the Fulton, for many years.

The sign "A. J. Sommer" has been a little shop in the old-fashioned street, just north of the Fulton, for many years. It has been a little shop in the old-fashioned street, just north of the Fulton, for many years.

The sign "A. J. Sommer" has been a little shop in the old-fashioned street, just north of the Fulton, for many years. It has been a little shop in the old-fashioned street, just north of the Fulton, for many years.

The sign "A. J. Sommer" has been a little shop in the old-fashioned street, just north of the Fulton, for many years. It has been a little shop in the old-fashioned street, just north of the Fulton, for many years.

The sign "A. J. Sommer" has been a little shop in the old-fashioned street, just north of the Fulton, for many years. It has been a little shop in the old-fashioned street, just north of the Fulton, for many years.

The sign "A. J. Sommer" has been a little shop in the old-fashioned street, just north of the Fulton, for many years. It has been a little shop in the old-fashioned street, just north of the Fulton, for many years.

The sign "A. J. Sommer" has been a little shop in the old-fashioned street, just north of the Fulton, for many years. It has been a little shop in the old-fashioned street, just north of the Fulton, for many years.

The sign "A. J. Sommer" has been a little shop in the old-fashioned street, just north of the Fulton, for many years. It has been a little shop in the old-fashioned street, just north of the Fulton, for many years.

ON THE AREA LOOKING TOWARDS THE RESTAURANT AND DOWN

was called, the man staggered a few minutes, with wide, unseeing eyes, repeating "That's Frankenstein." After that he was silent. The man who was with him pointed to the thing, said "That's Frankenstein." The man who was with him pointed to the thing, said "That's Frankenstein." The man who was with him pointed to the thing, said "That's Frankenstein."

By this time the tide was at low water, and the man who was with him pointed to the thing, said "That's Frankenstein." The man who was with him pointed to the thing, said "That's Frankenstein." The man who was with him pointed to the thing, said "That's Frankenstein."

The man who was with him pointed to the thing, said "That's Frankenstein." The man who was with him pointed to the thing, said "That's Frankenstein." The man who was with him pointed to the thing, said "That's Frankenstein."

THEIR HABITS.

It is not so long ago that the man who was with him pointed to the thing, said "That's Frankenstein." The man who was with him pointed to the thing, said "That's Frankenstein." The man who was with him pointed to the thing, said "That's Frankenstein."

The man who was with him pointed to the thing, said "That's Frankenstein." The man who was with him pointed to the thing, said "That's Frankenstein." The man who was with him pointed to the thing, said "That's Frankenstein."

The man who was with him pointed to the thing, said "That's Frankenstein." The man who was with him pointed to the thing, said "That's Frankenstein." The man who was with him pointed to the thing, said "That's Frankenstein."